ATTENTION PARENTS OWSLEY COUNTY PTSO NEEDS VOLUNTEERS

The Owsley County PTSO is looking for volunteers to help with a fundraising project! It is very easy and can be done at home. We need help with trimming and counting Box Tops! Contact a PTSO member (at school or on our FB page) to receive your bag of Box Tops to work on. Trim, check expiration date, and sort into groups of 50. Then just return them to the school and a PTSO Officer will pick them up. They will be cashed in to raise money for the PTSO to purchase items needed for the school to better serve our students. ALL STUDENTS will benefit from the items decided upon by PTSO. Contact Trish Bishop, Amy Murray, Sherri Caudill or Becky McQueen for more info. It is also time for nominations for SBDM Council members for both schools. If you want to get involved in your schools or you know someone that would like to get involved, nominate them for SBDM Council. Nomination forms are on page 8 in this edition.

Owsley County Drug Awareness Compliance Checks "3 out of 7 Businesses Failed"

On Friday, March 27, 2015 the Owsley County Drug Awareness conducted Tobacco Compliance Checks with collaboration of the Booneville City Police. Compliance Checks are performed to ensure that local businesses are refraining from selling tobacco products to underage children. A teen enters local businesses who sell tobacco products and attempts to purchase. If the purchase is successful the clerk receives a letter stating what could happen to them if they sell to an underage teen again. If the purchase is unsuccessful, the clerk receives a letter congratulating them on passing the Compliance Check and receives a gift card from the Owsley County Drug Awareness. Seven businesses were included in the tobacco compliance check: BP, Valero, Funtown Quick Mart, Family Dollar, Dollar General, Joes Meat Market, and Shopwise. Unfortunately, three out of the seven businesses failed the compliance check. These businesses include Valero, Funtown Quick Mart, and Joe's Meat Market.

Holy Family Catholic Church

invites anyone who would like to come and join us for our services during these special days of Holy Week.

On Thursday, Apr. 2, we celebrate Holy Thursday at 5 p.m. when Jesus instituted Holy Eucharist with the apostles and they received Holy Eucharist for the first time. We also have the Washing of the Feet when we commemorate Je-sus washing the apostles' feet and we have our feet washed by Father Joe Koury as a symbol of how we each are called to wash each others' feet in service in our community of Booneville and the surrounding area.

On Good Friday we have our Good Friday service at 5 p.m. on Apr. 3. It is not a Mass on this day since this is the day that Jesus died. We read the Passion of Jesus, have the veneration of the cross where each is invited to come forth and venerate the cross in some way such as bowing your head, or kissing the feet of Jesus on the cross and then receiving Communion for those who are Catholic or those who are not Catholic can come forth for a blessing.

On Saturday, Apr. 4th Mass begins at 5 p.m. with the Blessing of the Fire outside and then a procession into the church where the Paschal Candle is lit and we all light candles as we remember that Jesus is the light of the world. The Easter Proclamation is sung which recalls God's saving power for our faith ancestors. We have several Scripture readings which recall how God has worked in our lives throughout the ages for our own salvation. Then we ring the bells and sing the Gloria which has not been sung throughout the whole season of Lent and once again we sing Alleluia because the Lord has risen. We bless the baptismal water and renew our own baptismal vows and then complete the Mass with the Eucharist and the final blessing has a triple alleluia.

All are welcome! Sister Marge and Sister Angie

Outdoor Truths

by Gary Miller

As in any opening season, there are pros and cons concerning the effectiveness of early hunting. Turkey season is no different. Because they have had no hunter pressure, it can be somewhat easy to set up very close to their roost and call an unsuspecting gobbler into firing range. On the other hand there is what is known as a tom being henned up. Henned up means a tom is surrounded by hens and is very unlikely to leave them in order to come to where a hunter is set up. This happens a lot in the early season. It's the old adage, a bird in the hand is better than two in the bush. And for a big gobbler, he is thinking, "ten hens next to me are better than two on the other end of the field." There have been many hunters who have had to watch a field of turkeys fifty yards out of range simply because they were content to stay where they were.

Another way a gobbler gets henned up is when a lone hen actively works to keep it from leaving her. In fact, she will purposefully lead her man in a completely different direction – away from you. I'm not sure if she senses danger or what, but I know she just doesn't like what seems to be transpiring.

There have been many times in my life where my wife has led me away from a situation that just didn't seem right to her. For me, I was the naïve and gullible guy who thought she was crazy and overprotective. I thought the sound of other hens where just honest cries for help. Some of them were but others were a subtle trap. The problem was that I would have never seen the trap if it were not for my wife's keen intuition and outside perspective. Now men, I know that most women are eager to admit that we men are clueless and naïve. They will readily brag that without them we would do stupid things because we are too trusting of all people and situations. Well, after many, many years of marriage I am finally admitting they are right. And you need to as well. My only consolation in writing this is knowing that my wife will probably not be reading this particular article and therefore admitting she is right will not be as hard to swallow. The good thing however when it comes to something as important as this, is that I still win even when she is right.

A Simple Man

by Margaret Faye Hensley

Column # 122

Clarence had been interested in history since he was a young boy. He often thought of ways he would have taught his high school students about history if he had been a teacher. It felt silly at times, but he would tell Liza and Emma about an approach he would use if he had a class full of young people to teach. It was his encouragement that led both his daughters into becoming teachers! He used to be able to keep dates and times of historic events clearly in his memory. In the last year or two he had resorted to checking in his many history books or in his keepsake box to see when a particular national or world event had happened. As he held the box of keepsakes, he was reminded of the time he lined up with hundreds of soldiers as General Patton reviewed the troops. Clarence thought about the procession of army tanks that passed by with the General. It was an exciting event and they were able to take a break from the front lines to attend the procession. He and Buck had talked about that day many times, and each time they could each remember the surprise of a hot shower and a hot meal they were given after General Patton left. He was thankful that he had not forgotten that special event in his life. It had been such a gift to have his friend Buck to talk to. There were several men that kept in touch over the years from their unit, but all had passed away but the two of them. The television stations reported that about two-thousand WWII veterans were passing away each day. Clarence had his dress greens hanging in a plastic bag in his closet. He looked at it hanging there every time he chose a shirt or pants to wear. He had buried his five brothers before him. Matter of fact, he was the sole survivor of his ten siblings still alive. He had thought when he was nineteen and fighting in a war so far from home that he wouldn't live to turn twenty. Clarence worked hard each day to find something to laugh about and be thankful for. He was known in his unit as a guy that liked to wrestle and who liked to laugh. Clarence would announce to any new men that joined his squad that he was a simple man and that it didn't take much to entertain him or make him happy! Guys would ask him to play his harmonica and tell them a joke. His sergeant thanked him for playing and told him it was good for morale. The sergeant secretly handed him jokes to tell the men. Clarence thought the world of his sergeant. He saw the stress and the concern his sergeant carried. He was highly respected and worked hard alongside of the men he was in charge of.

POINT

EASTER – HOW MUCH DO YOU BELIEVE IT?

People tend to do what they believe and how much they believe it will determine the extent to which they do it.

Example: If you are driving down the road and see a sign that reads, "Stop! Bridge Out Ahead! Stop!" If you believe the sign, you will stop, turn around and take a detour. If you are thinking, "The bridge was fine the last time I was here. I think I'll slow down and see for myself." Then you tend to believe the sign, but you're not 100% convinced, therefore you proceed with caution. If you come to the sign thinking, "This is someone's idea of a joke." Then it is full speed ahead.

In each case what you believed and how much you believed it determined your actions.

At this point, you may be wondering, "What does all this have to do with Easter?"

The example above and the subject of Easter brings me to this question, "Do you believe in Easter, and if so, how much?"

There are several beliefs that are essential to Christianity. The virgin birth, the deity of Christ, His sacrificial death and the resurrection are the keys to the Christian faith. Without any of these Christianity crumbles. If Mary wasn't a virgin, then Christ is not the Son of God. If Christ is not God in the flesh, His death means nothing more than any other martyr. If He did not rise from the dead, there is no hope of our resurrection or eternal life; for this reason, Easter is indispensable.

People celebrate Easter in various ways. My wife's family, would attend church and gather for a huge meal Easter afternoon, similar to Thanksgiving. My family, on the other hand, well, Easter was just another day.

Easter is traditionally the highest attended Sunday of the year for many churches. Churches across the land will have sunrise services, breakfasts, egg hunts, puppets, children's programs, special music or some combination of these events along with a sermon of salvation, resurrection, hope and life. Sadly, for many people, Easter is the only day of the year they will attend a house of worship.

The story of Easter is simple enough, but it is mind-blowing if you think about it. God comes to earth; born of a virgin. When reaching adulthood He begins to preach, teach and perform miracles. His followers believe He is the Son of God and the Messiah they have long been waiting for. However, instead of leading a rebellion, He is arrested by the religious and civil authorities and crucified. Jesus had told His disciples about His pending death and resurrection, but somehow these statements were not remembered until after the fact (Luke 24:6-8).

By believing in Easter, we believe a man rose from the dead, without assistance from anyone else, three days after His death. If the resurrection is true, it should change our lives. How much do you believe in Easter?

Just as with our "bridge out ahead" sign. How deeply you believe in the resurrection, will determine your actions. Unbelief or an "it don't matter" attitude will result in no change, just driving down the road as normal.

An uncertainty about the resurrection will bring the same actions as the doubt about our "bridge out" sign. A person will proceed with caution. Visiting the church on Easter with no other indications of living for God the rest of the year is equivalent to driving slowly and making sure the sign is correct. Those believing the resurrection will do the same as those who had faith in the sign. They will stop; heeding the warning of pending disaster. A belief in the resurrection will cause a person to stop, realize their sinful condition before God and accept Jesus as the Saviour. Then the detour is taken, life changes upon salvation (2 Corinthians 5:17). The direction of life changes, because the destination of life has changed. No longer is the person on the road of self-satisfaction but the path of God-satisfaction. Goals in life have changed because God and others are now on the top of the priority list; life has taken a much-needed detour.

Do you believe in Easter? Do you believe in the resurrection? To what degree do you believe? No words are needed to answer these questions because people tend to do what they believe and how much they believe it will determine the extent to which they do it.
